GREENVILLE, SOUTH CAROLINA

Camp

Multicultural flavors reign at this modern American spot

WITH ITS OFTEN-CHANGING, internationally inspired menu and inventive cocktails, Camp has been a welcome addition to Greenville's fast-growing food scene. The latest venture from Table 301 Restaurant Group (which is behind other local favorites such as Jones Oyster Co. and The Lazy Goat), Camp opened in the spring of 2021 in downtown's Camperdown Plaza. The never-fussy destination is like three restaurants in one: Take your pick from the modern, light-filled dining room; an alfresco table on the patio; or a seat at the chef's counter. The restaurant's bar stretches right into the plaza, offering a fun and easy spot to grab quick cocktails, but you'd be smart to make time for a meal. At Camp, dinner might include a seafood tostada with a tomatillo vinaigrette, a mushroom vol-au-vent with sherry-sorghum cream sauce, or a lamb T-bone flavored with tikka masala. However you decide to fill in the gaps in this edible choose-your-own adventure, you'll be thankful it started here.
